WHY WE DO IT.

We are giving away beautiful Pastel Pictures for two reasons: FIRST—We wish to express to our old customers our appreciation of their patronage.

SECOND—We hope to induce a large number of new customers to trade with us at least long enough to test the quality of our goods, our prices, our reliability, and our way of doing business.

We believe in enterprise and advertising, and that every one in business ought to use all honorable means to make his trade as large and his customers as numerous as possible. Please bear in mind that we make no advance in the price of our goods on account of this offer. We will continue to be headquarters for good goods and low prices, and expect by increasing our trade to be able to sell on a closer margin and to offer better bargains than ever before.

We respectfully solicit your patronage and will take pleasure in presenting you with the pictures to which your purchases will entitle you.

DRIVEN TO MARRIAGE.

Everybody declared that Hugh Colewood ought to be the happiest man in Greenville.

He was young, handsome and well educated; then, just as he was preparing to fight his way to fame with poverty arrayed against him, he had suddenly been made the sole heir to the fine old estate of his eccentric aunt, Miss Betsy Colewood, recently deceased.

What more was necessary to the happiness of a young fellow like Hugh Colewood? Nothing, it seemed to the envious bachelors.

However, there were conditions, or one at least, in this aunt's will which caused him no little uneasiness. He must love and marry the girl of her choice, one whom he had never even seen.

Hugh Colewood caught up his aunt's last letter to him and read it again and again, hoping to find some little loophole of escape from the galling condition.

But it was there in merciless black and white. This is the part which worried him:

"If you cannot comply with my wishes for you to meet Ethel Wayne and love and marry her you forfeit your heirship to my estate. Ethel's mother was my dearest friend, and if my daughter is to be so disappointed in her fondest desires, you cannot help loving her."

"I could not rest in my tomb peacefully, knowing that I had been a mistress of my estate, and you, dear boy, the master. My lawyer, Mr. Cranston, will arrange for you to meet Ethel Wayne, and I will see that you are not disappointed in her."

You know how thoroughly I despise old bachelors, therefore I give you warning that I will not allow you to inherit my house and land as one of that disagreeable, crusty order."

So had written the eccentric spinster. Hugh nibbled the ends of his mustache impatiently as he pondered as to the conditions which the will imposed.

High loved the Colewood estates, and could not bear to think of giving them up. Now, if the will had not specified whom he must marry, but left the condition of a wife entirely to himself, Hugh believed that he would have enjoyed the romance of hunting for a bride.

He picked up his hat and rushed from his room, going up to the hotel where Mr. Cranston was stopping, while he arranged some business matters with him.

"Hello, Colewood! Have a seat," said the lawyer, scrutinizing the flushed face and nervous manner of the visitor, and then he turned to him, and said: "I had up to date regarded Mr. Cranston as one of my best friends, but to ignore me utterly, when he knew I would accompany Cousin Ethel here, looks like downright intentional neglect."

"You have not given me the pleasure of knowing your name," said Hugh, both amused and pleased with his pretty driver.

"Oh, I'm a Wayne, too," he answered laughingly. "Ethel Estelle Wayne, variously nicknamed, as you will observe later on."

Two Ethel Waynes! Here was a real surprise. "Ethel Estelle Wayne," said Cranston, "mentioned that strange fact to him?"

If the Ethel Wayne referred to in the will was only a girl, and not a woman, and generally captivated as the one by his side Hugh thought it might be an easy matter after all to obey that condition which had so vexed him.

Colewood received a cordial welcome at Mrs. Thurston's pleasant home. He found Miss Wayne to be a tall, dignified girl of about twenty-three, with coal black hair and deep gray eyes. She was as unlike her little merry-hearted cousin as it was possible to be.

Yes, Hugh decided she was just such a woman as his eccentric aunt would be likely to select as the wife of her heir.

In the weeks which followed Hugh's arrival he saw a great deal of Miss Wayne, although much of her time was divided between her taste for literature and in remonstrating against the innocent pranks of her cousin.

It did not require a long time for the young man to realize that he could never love Miss Wayne as the man should love the girl whom he intends to marry.

He made another important discovery—that his life would be a failure without the little cousin to furnish daily sunshine and wisely cheer for his own home.

He resolved to let Miss Wayne have one-half of his aunt's estate and the orphan asylum to the other. He would marry the girl of his own choice, provided he could win her, and boldly fight his own way through life.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

is free from lime, alum, and all extraneous or detrimental substances, and ABSOLUTELY PURE. It is in every way superior to every similar preparation. Witness:

The United States Government tests (Chemical Division, Agricultural Department) show Royal Baking Powder a cream of tartar powder superior to all others in leavening strength.—See BULLETIN 13, AG. DEP., p. 599.

I find the Royal Baking Powder superior to all the others in every respect. It is purest and strongest. WALTER S. HAINES, M. D.

Prof. Chemistry, Rush Medical College, Consulting Chemist, Chicago Board of Health, etc.

I have found the constituents of Royal Baking Powder to be of a high degree of purity, free from adulteration or admixture of deleterious substances. J. W. MALLEY, Ph. D., F. R. S.
